Everyone has a name | Jerusalem, Israel

Today (02/05/2016), two days before the marking of The Holocaust Memorial Day, 269Life activists in Israel performed a shocking artistic demonstration, that took place near the "Yad Vashem" official memorial for the victims of the Holocaust.

The performance is meant to expose the public to the resemblance between the Jewish Holocaust and the Animal Holocaust, and to open people's eyes to the horrors the animals are going through every day in the various industries. We call ourselves an enlightened society but we fail to see the similarities: animals are conscious sentient beings and their identities are erased. They are numbered, separated from their families and slaughtered by the tens and thousands of millions, transported in hideous ways to slaughter. We capitalize on their misery and exploit every inch of their bodies, including their fat and skin.

The same practices that were used in the Jewish Holocaust were developed and first used in animal exploiting industries. It's time for the human race to realize we are not superior to other beings, just like the Nazis in World War 2 weren't superior to other races. Every living creature has the right to be free from exploitation!
